Dear Parents,

This week is national Anti-Bullying Week and this year's theme is change starts with us. In order to partake in Anti-Bullying Week, we held an Odd Socks Day which celebrates our differences. Children also had an anti-bullying assembly, respect workshops and lessons focused on bullying in their PSHE lessons. These lessons are designed to teach children what bullying is and how they can stand up for themselves and others.

In order to fully embrace this year's theme, we would like to invite parents to take part in an Anti-Bullying Workshop on Friday 22nd November at 9.00- 10.00am. The workshop will focus on the different forms of bullying that a child may experience, how parents can help their child and forming a strong parent and school partnership in order to eliminate all bullying.

Refreshments will be provided at the workshop. Parental attendance is important in order to get your perspectives. We look forward to seeing and welcoming you all.

Yours sincerely,

Ms Hersi
PSHE Lead
